

THIS PART ISN'T FOR YOUR MUM

This one's yours.

Your number, your streak, your retest. A page to track your iron, so you can actually see it change instead of taking anyone's word for it.

iron for her years • know your number

STRAIGHT UP

You're not lazy, and you're not a little kid.

If you've been dragging, falling asleep after practice, cold all the time, foggy in class, that's not a character flaw and it's not you being dramatic. Sometimes it's just low iron, and low iron is a number you can fix.

Here's the deal, no lecture. Your body stores iron like a savings account. Periods, growing, and training spend it. A normal blood test checks the cash in your pocket, not the savings. So you can look "fine" on paper and still be running low. That's probably what's been going on.

The whole job

One strip. Once a day. That's it. It melts on your tongue, tastes like raspberry, no pill to choke down, nothing to carry. You're not going to feel a lightning bolt tomorrow. It builds up quietly over a couple of months, and then one day you notice you're just... not wiped out anymore.

This page is so you can prove it to yourself. Write your starting number, tick off the days, and check the number again in a couple of months. Watch it climb. That's the point.

YOUR STARTING LINE

Write your number down before you start.

If you got a ferritin test, put the number here. If you haven't yet, that's okay, start the streak and add it when you get it. This is your "before."

MY FERRITIN NOW

NG/ML

DATE I STARTED

DAY / MONTH

Why one a day actually matters

- Every day beats a big day. Iron builds up slowly, so a strip most days does way more than doubling up now and then.
- Take it with water or juice. A splash of orange juice helps it absorb. Skip milk, tea or coffee right after, they block it. Wait about an hour.
- Pick a time you won't forget. Morning, before practice, whenever. Attach it to something you already do every day.

One honest thing

This isn't about being perfect. You'll miss a day. Fine. Just get back to it. The streak below is a tool, not a test you can fail.

[illegible]

90 boxes. 90 days. Then you retest.

HOW YOU FEEL

Quick gut-check, every few weeks.

Don't overthink it. Just circle where you're at. It's useful to look back on when you're deciding if it's working.

Week 4

☐ Still wiped ☐ A bit better ☐ Noticeably better

Week 8

☐ Still wiped ☐ A bit better ☐ Noticeably better

Week 12

☐ Still wiped ☐ A bit better ☐ Noticeably better

Heads up

A lot of the time the number climbs before the feeling does. So if week 4 still feels meh, that's normal, don't quit. The retest is the real scoreboard.

RETEST DAY

Check the number again. This is the proof.

Around the 8 to 12 week mark, get your ferritin checked again. Put the new number next to your old one and see the gap.

BEFORE	AFTER
NG/ML	NG/ML

That difference? That's you, showing up most days, for three months.

What the new number tells you

- Climbing and you feel better → keep going, recheck down the line.
- Climbing but slowly → normal, iron takes time. Stay with it.
- Not moving, or you still feel rough → tell your mum, and loop in your doctor. Something else might be going on, and that's worth checking.

You didn't need a personality transplant or more sleep you don't have time for. You needed a number brought back up. Now you know how to do it.

THE RULES, SHORT

Everything on one page.

Do

- One strip a day, same-ish time.
- Take it with water or a little juice.
- Tick your box. Get back on if you miss one.
- Retest around 8 to 12 weeks.

Skip right after your strip

- Milk and dairy
- Tea and coffee
- (Wait about an hour, then whatever you want.)

Don't

Don't double up to "catch up," and don't take it on top of another iron supplement. More iron isn't better, and the daily amount is already set for you. If anything feels off, tell your mum.

This tracker is for personal use and encouragement, not medical advice. IRYN is a gentle daily iron supplement for girls aged 12 to 18. If your ferritin is very low, or you've been told you're anemic, that needs a doctor's dose, not a daily strip, so talk to your doctor. These statements have not been evaluated by the FDA.
